

Antony Blinken
U.S. Secretary of State Nominee
Office of the President Elect
1401 Constitution Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20230

Secretary John Kerry
Special Presidential Envoy for Climate Designate
Office of the President Elect
1401 Constitution Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20230

Dear Secretary of State Nominee Blinken and Secretary Kerry:

We, the undersigned landscape architects, design professionals, and other stewards of the built and natural environments, are writing to urge you to recommit to the United States' promise to the Paris Climate Agreement of the United Nations (UN) Framework Convention on Climate Change. The United States must act quickly and diligently to reverse our climate change impacts while working to build a more sustainable and resilient future for all.

We also urge you to develop global climate action approaches that heavily use green infrastructure, nature-based solutions, and other low-impact development strategies. The findings in the 2018 UN Climate Change Annual Report state that green infrastructure is one of the world's greatest tools to create a more sustainable future. Additionally, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's Special Report on Global Warming of 1.5 °C highlights the importance of green infrastructure, sustainable land use and water management, and nature-based solutions as important adaptation options to reduce the risks and perils related to climate change. As the Biden-Harris administration begins to take action on this issue, we hope you heed these findings to create a more climate-resilient and sustainable planet.

Landscape architects are leaders in using green infrastructure and nature-based solutions to plan and design projects that reduce greenhouse gas emissions and make communities more resilient to climate impacts. The profession successfully creates climate-resilient projects, including green roofs, parks and other outdoor spaces, living shorelines, multimodal transportation networks, large-scale commercial and residential master plans, and more. Our designed and built infrastructure projects help reduce or sequester greenhouse gases while also providing other critical community benefits.

It is also critical for you to take swift action to address climate impacts on underserved communities, including communities of color, low-income populations, and Tribal and Indigenous Peoples. Across the globe, these populations are disproportionately affected by the ravages of climate change. Now is the time to address this issue on an international level and deliver targeted and sustained investments in these communities.

Because of the absence of national leadership on climate issues and the purposeful removal of the United States from the Paris Climate Agreement, the American Society of Landscape Architects joined more than 4,000 state and local governments, business leaders, university heads, cultural institutions, and others by signing the “We Are Still In” declaration. Through this declaration and organizing efforts, the signers are helping to fill the void left by the federal government’s withdrawal from the agreement. However, our efforts alone will not be enough. We look forward to the Biden-Harris administration making the federal government a full partner and leader in climate change and resilience on the world stage.

Sincerely,
