

Job Title: Landscape Architect

Location: Denver, Colorado

Mundus Bishop specializes in the planning and design of public places for clients and communities across the country. We believe that the quality of public space and the environment is inherently tied to the quality of our communities, culture and lifestyle. We primarily work with federal, state and local municipalities for places of natural and cultural significance.

We are looking for a talented and experienced landscape architect to join us in creating memorable and sustainable places. The successful candidate will be skilled in writing, analysis, and design with expertise in conveying ideas through graphic and written work. A solid detailed design focus, and strong technical skills in site design are desired. Proficiency in AutoCAD, Adobe InDesign, and Microsoft Office are expected, along with familiarity with Sketch Up, animation applications, and ArcView or similar GIS applications.

The ideal candidate will be a licensed landscape architect with experience in parks, open spaces, cultural and historic landscapes, gardens, campuses, museums and urban spaces. Experience in working collaboratively with government agencies and private clients is highly desired. Travel is required.

If you are passionate about the profession of landscape architecture, and interested in contributing your written, verbal, graphic, and design talents to the planning and design of significant cultural, social and natural places, please consider our creative team.

Email a short cover letter, resume, and a brief sample portfolio as a PDF – please keep file size to 5MB or under. All inquiries are considered confidential. No phone inquiries, please.
